

Nikko AM Conservative Strategy

Monthly Update 29 February 2024

Assets are held in the Nikko AM Wholesale NZ Conservative Fund. The Nikko AM Conservative Fund (retail) and Nikko AM KiwiSaver Scheme Conservative Fund invest in units in the wholesale fund, which the commentary refers to.

Market Overview

- Global equity markets continued their recent run of strong performance over February.
- Global bonds also continued their recent trend, with yields moving higher on expectations central banks will not cut rates as aggressively as markets priced in at the end of 2023.
- The MSCI ACWI (NZD Hedged) was up 4.7% and closed at another record high, as did the leading indexes in USA, Japan and Europe.
- The Bloomberg Global Agg Index (NZD Hedged) was down -0.7% for February, a second month of negative performance.

Fund Highlights

- February fund performance was strong in terms of both absolute return and relative returns, with global share markets continuing to move higher.
- Outperformance from the global shares portfolio was driven by positive stock selection in a range of sectors including Info Tech & Financials.
- The NZ equity funds within the portfolio continued their solid start for the year, outperforming the NZX50 Index.
- Local and global bond funds were in line with, or slightly behind, their respective benchmarks.

Market Commentary

Global equity markets continued their recent run of strong performance over February. The MSCI ACWI (NZD Hedged) was up 4.7% and closed at another record high, as did the leading indexes in USA, Japan and Europe. One departure from recent months was China and Hong Kong equities which also posted very strong gains, outperforming most other markets after disappointing results over 2023. Global bonds also continued their recent trend, with yields moving higher on expectations central banks will not cut rates as aggressively as markets priced in at the end of 2023. The Bloomberg Global Agg Index (NZD Hedged) was down -0.7% for February, a second month of negative performance on the back of the very strong returns posted over the last two months of 2023. Global investment grade (IG) spreads tightened by 4bps while US HY spreads narrowed by 32bps. In equities, the MSCI ACWI Index (NZD unhedged) was up 5.4% for February, benefiting from a slightly weaker Kiwi dollar which was down 0.5% versus the USD.

Some of the more economically sensitive sectors posted the strongest gains over February. Consumer discretionary was up nearly 8% to lead the pack, and Industrials was up 5.7%. Information Technology continued its incredibly strong performance, advancing 6.1%. Defensive and/or interest rate sensitive sectors such as Consumer Staples (+0.4%), Utilities (-0.8%), and Real Estate (1.5%) were the laggards for the month. On a regional basis (all returns in local currency) China was the best performer, up 9.4%, with Hong Kongs Hang Seng Index up 6.6%. Japan had another strong month (+7.9%) and is the best performing region by far on a year-to-date basis, as did the US (S&P500 Index up 5.2%) and Europe (Euro Stoxx50 Index up 4.9%). The NZ, Australia and UK markets were laggards over February, returning -1.1%, 0.2% and 0.0% respectively.

On the economic front, the US economy continued to hold up well, with labour market data suggesting ongoing resilience and January PMI surveys positive. It was more mixed in Europe, annual inflation fell to 2.6% YoY and there were positive readings for the services sector, but manufacturing activity remained below par.

Fund Commentary

February fund performance was strong in terms of both absolute return and relative returns. Global shares were the main contributor for both absolute and relative returns. Outperformance from the global shares portfolio was driven by positive stock selection in a range of sectors including Info Tech (Nvidia), Communications Services (Meta), and Financials (Palomar and Ryan Speciality). There was some weakness from the consumer discretionary names across the portfolio, with Sony Group, Amadeus IT, Compass and Bookings.com all underperforming the broader market. The NZ equity funds within the portfolio continued their solid start for the year, outperforming the NZX50 Index. Strong performance from NextDC, Ingenia Communities and Fisher & Paykel Healthcare were key drivers. Local and global bond Funds were in line with, or slightly behind, their respective benchmarks.
